Keep Kids Creative This Spring Break in Westchester

By Mary Alice Franklin • March 20, 2026

Spring break in Westchester is coming, and for parents, that means finding ways to keep kids engaged while school is out. In Westchester County, there are plenty of hands-on arts programs, workshops and family-friendly activities taking place March 30 through April 3. From painting and clay projects to interactive music and theater experiences, these programs give children and teens a chance to explore their creativity—and give parents a bit of breathing room, too.

School's Out/Art's In: Spring Break
presented by Katonah Museum of Art

Katonah Museum of Art offers a weeklong series of hands-on spring break workshops (3/31-4/3) focused on line, form and process. Daily sessions explore different techniques: collage, sgraffito drawing, wire sculpture and printmaking, with each day introducing a different approach to art-making. Guests can also explore the museum's current exhibition, STILL/MOVING, featuring the artwork of Shen Wei. Programs are designed for ages 3–8 with an adult, with drop-off options for ages 9 and up.
